

Cookie Policy

Effective 8 August 2026 · The Loyalty Loop

1. What cookies are

Cookies are small text files placed on your device when you visit a website or use an app. Similar technologies include local storage and push-notification tokens, which we refer to collectively as "cookies" in this policy.

2. The categories of cookies we use

- Necessary — required for the Service to function, such as keeping you signed in and remembering your cookie preferences. These cannot be switched off.
- Analytics — help us understand how the Service is used so we can improve it, such as which pages are visited and how often. These are only set with your consent.
- Marketing — used to measure the effectiveness of promotional messages and, where applicable, personalise offers. These are only set with your consent.

3. Managing your preferences

You can choose which categories of non-essential cookies to allow when the cookie banner first appears, and you can change your choice at any time from your account or browser settings. If you decline analytics or marketing cookies, the Service will still work, but we will have less information to improve it and you may see less relevant offers.

Your consent choice is versioned: if we materially change how we use cookies, we will ask you to confirm your preferences again.

4. Third-party cookies

Some cookies are set by trusted third parties who provide services to us, such as authentication, maps, and bot protection on our sign-up forms. These providers may use cookies for their own purposes subject to their own privacy policies.

5. Changes to this policy

We may update this Cookie Policy from time to time to reflect changes in the technologies we use. We will update the effective date at the top of this document when we do.
