

Privacy Notice

Effective 23 September 2026 · The Loyalty Loop

1. Who we are

The Loyalty Loop ("we", "us") is the data controller for personal data processed through the Service, except where we process data on behalf of a participating shop that acts as controller for its own members' loyalty data as described below. You can contact us about privacy matters at developer@the-loyalty-loop.com.

2. Information we collect

We collect account details you provide, such as your name, email, optional phone number and postcode, together with authentication information. We also process shops joined, loyalty progress, recorded spend, rewards, visits, reviews, messages, notification subscriptions and technical information needed to run and secure the Service. Device location is used when you permit it for nearby-shop features. Optional usage analytics are described in our Cookie Policy.

If you choose card linking when it becomes available, Fidel collects card details directly through its secure enrolment form. We do not receive or store your full card number or card security code. We store a provider card identifier, card scheme, last four digits, link status and linking/unlinking timestamps. A random account-linking identifier associates your enrolled cards with your account.

For matched transactions, Fidel sends purchase or refund identifiers, linked-card and merchant/location identifiers, amount, currency, transaction time and authorisation, clearing or refund status. We store transaction and webhook records, including provider payloads and processing outcomes, to calculate rewards, reconcile refunds, investigate failures and prevent duplicate credit. This is purchase-level data, not a list of individual basket items or access to your bank balance.

For merchants, we process business and location details, payment-provider details and any merchant identifiers supplied for enrolment and transaction matching.

3. How we use your information

We use account and loyalty information to provide the service you request, record eligible purchases, calculate progress and rewards, apply refunds, manage redemption and answer support requests. Our legal basis for these activities is performance of our contract with you. For shop-directed processing, the shop is responsible for its own lawful basis.

Optional card enrolment and transaction monitoring require your separate consent in the Fidel form. You can withdraw that consent by removing the linked card or contacting support. Withdrawal does not affect processing already carried out lawfully. Card-linking consent is separate from cookies, analytics, marketing and notification permissions.

We rely on legitimate interests to keep the Service secure, investigate misuse, prevent duplicate rewards and resolve disputes, balancing these interests against your rights. We process information to comply with legal obligations where required. Optional usage analytics and consent-based promotional communications rely on your consent.

Reward calculations and refund adjustments are automated using the matched amount and the shop threshold. A refund can reduce progress below zero and temporarily block redemption at that shop. You can contact support to challenge an incorrect match or adjustment and request a review.

4. Who we share information with

When you join a shop, its authorised owners and staff can access the member information and loyalty activity needed to operate that shop programme. This does not give them access to your full payment card details or your activity at unrelated shops.

Fidel API provides optional card enrolment and card-network transaction matching. It works with the relevant payment networks, including Visa, Mastercard and American Express. We share the identifiers and programme/merchant information needed for that service and receive matched transaction events. Fidel and the networks may have their own data-protection responsibilities; their processing is described in the notices and terms provided during enrolment. Fidel publishes its privacy notice at <https://www.fidelapi.com/legal/privacy>.

We also use cloud database, authentication and storage services, email and notification providers and optional business tools to operate the Service. We do not sell your personal data. Card linking does not give a shop permission to send you marketing without the appropriate separate permission.

We may disclose information where required by law, to protect users and the Service, or as part of a business transfer with appropriate safeguards.

5. International transfers

Some of our service providers may process data outside the United Kingdom or European Economic Area. Where this happens, we rely on appropriate safeguards recognised under data protection law, such as standard contractual clauses, to protect your information.

6. How long we keep your information

We keep account and loyalty data while needed to provide your account and programme. Transaction, refund and processing records are used to maintain accurate balances, investigate duplicate or missing events and resolve disputes. Retention depends on whether those purposes remain necessary and any applicable legal duties; card removal does not itself erase past activity.

Where card linking is enabled, removing a card stops future earning for that link and starts its removal from Fidel. Provider removal can take time; contact support if it is not completed. You can request account deletion through Profile or support. The card-linked deletion process must remove cards at Fidel before completing deletion of the account and its linked-card and transaction records; if provider removal fails, the request remains incomplete and needs retry or support.

We do not promise immediate deletion from all backups or from independently controlled merchant, Fidel or payment-network records. Any records retained to meet a specific legal obligation must be limited to that purpose. Contact us for details of retention or the progress of a deletion request.

7. Your rights

You may request access, correction, erasure or portability of your personal data, restriction of processing, or object to processing based on legitimate interests, subject to applicable law. You can withdraw consent for optional processing without withdrawing from unrelated features. Contact developer@the-loyalty-loop.com to exercise these rights or query automated reward adjustments.

You may complain to the UK Information Commissioner at <https://ico.org.uk/> or your local data-protection authority. You do not need to contact us first. Card-linked features are being rolled out; if a card-removal or deletion control is unavailable, contact support rather than assuming that closing the app stops monitoring.

8. Cookies

We use cookies and similar technologies as described in our Cookie Policy, which forms part of this Privacy Notice.

9. Children

The Service is not directed at children under 16, and we do not knowingly collect personal data from them. If you believe a child has provided us with personal data, please contact us and we will take appropriate steps to remove it.

10. Changes to this notice

We may update this Privacy Notice from time to time. If we make material changes, we will notify you through the Service or by email before they take effect.
